

Mr. Lunde has been the State Secretary for Climate and Environment since October 2013 representing the Conservative Party in the Coalition Government. Prior to being nominated State Secretary, he worked as an adviser on energy and environment for the Conservative Party's Parliamentary group. Mr. Lunde has also worked at the Department of Economic Statistics at Statistics Norway, and has had several positions in the Conservative Party. Mr. Lunde holds a postgraduate degree in engineering from the Norwegian University of Science and Technology, as well as a postgraduate degree in business and administration from Norwegian School of Economics and Business Administration.