

Hannah Cushing

Hannah Cushing is the Senior Manager of Carbon Pricing at CDP – a not-for-profit charity that runs a global platform for companies and governments to measure and manage their environmental impact. CDP's standardized data and insights are then used by investors and policy makers – driving investment decision-making that is aligned to sustainable action.

Over the past three years at CDP, Hannah's work has focused on enabling companies to achieve their sustainability goals by implementing innovative solutions; specifically developing a toolkit for companies and investors to introduce an internal price on carbon that materially impacts business operations and investment decisions. Hannah has prior experience working in the waste-to-energy sector and received a B.A. of Economics and Environmental Studies from Vassar College.