

HE MR BRICE LALONDE

Special Ambassador for France in charge of the climate change negotiation

In the early seventies Brice Lalonde created the French branch of Friends of the Earth, and stood in the presidential election in 1981. From 1988 to 1992, he was Minister for the Environment and contributed to major international conventions including the Basel Convention, the Madrid Treaty on Antarctica, the management of the Rio Climate Convention. Later, he was appointed Chairman of the Round Table on Sustainable Development at the OECD in Paris. He has also been for ten years the elected mayor of city of Saint-Briac-sur-Mer (Brittany).

